Gleichen, Alberta, October 31, 1907.

NOT SO

Of late there has been considerable talk of incorporating Gleichen as a town and the impression has got abroad that to incorporate means increased taxation.
This is not so. So far as increasing the taxes is concerned incorporation has nothing whatever to do with it.

It is true that if the ratepayers so desire they can make the taxes higher as a town than they can as a village, but it does not follow that they must do so.

To incorporate as a town merely gives a place more power, but it still remains for the taxpayers to say whether or not they desire to use that power. The particular advantage in incorporating Gleichen at present is that whenever it is desired to do anything that will be of benefit to the community we will have the right to do it.

Gleichen has grown rapidly the past year and even with the new buildings that have gone up we find every house and room is occupied and more are in demand. In order that this place may keep up with the increasing population many improvements are required and other things are coming this way that makes it desirable that we should get in readiness for whatever may come.

In the effort to secure for Gleichen the agricultural college to be incorporated would lend considerable prestige to our position. The securing of this alone would be a great boon to Gleichen and there are numerous other matters that in a short time will require attention and it will be well to prepare for them.

It has also been said that Gleichen does not meet all the requirements for town incorporation, but from the capital it is learned that there is nothing to hinder the incorporation of this place and that it can be incorporated legally.
The member for this riding, Mr. E. H.
Riley, has already expressed the same opinion and offered his services in carrying it through.

It is now for the enterprising people of Gleichen to take up the incorporation of this town and seriously consider it.

When a traveller goes into a store and asks for an order and the merchant says he doesn't want anything just now and the traveller goes away and comes back again when he is making another trip, he does not feel discouraged nor lose the hope of finally making that man a customer. The man was approached at the wrong time and the drummer keeps coming back every time he is in town in the hope that sooner or later his visit and the man's requirements for goods will coincide, or that some time he will find his man in the kind of mood which will enable him to make a sale. It is just the same with advertising. You cannot expect one advertisement to do the business in every case. You have no good reason for saying that because big results do not immediately pour in advertising is no good. You are simply making regular calls upon your customers. You are approaching them at regular intervals and asking them for their trade.
The fact that they do not immediately fall on your neck and embrace you does not go to prove that they are not impressed by your advertising or that sooner or later you will be able to make them your customers. The thing to do is to keep right on with a regular, systematic advertising campaign and wait, just as the traveller does, for your advertisement and their wants to coincide.

Not only can nearly every kind of vegetables and grain be grown successfully in this district, but it has been proven beyond doubt that all kinds of shrubs, such as goose, black and red raspberries, currants, etc., are a boundless crop. Further more hardy apple trees and plum trees are showing excellent growth.

It is difficult to look at the future of the Gleichen District from any point of view without acknowledging that it is destined to be a wonderful wealth-producer and the home of thousands of prosperous farmers.

The outlook for the Gleichen district continues to grow brighter each day.
The rest of the world is beginning to realize that this great prairie country can produce food for the nations and that there is wealth to be made right here.

As a result of Sir Thomas Shaughnessy's visit Gleichen is obtaining a great deal of favorable comment from eastern newspapers.

A GOOD CONSTITUTION

An exchange while taking a crack at the banks, wholesalers and newspapers throws the following quotes at this fair Dominion:

"If Canada is not to have a period of hard times the credit will not belong to the Canadian banks which shut down on all credit with a sudden bang, and nursed cover as precipitately as Iowa farmers make for their storm cellars when they see a cyclone coming over the hill.

"The credit will not belong to the wholesalers who shortened credits with one jerk of the reins and sent dismal the store explaining their action into very dark corners of the Dominion.

"The credit will not to any large extent belong to the newspapers which have interviewed at much length every prophet of evil who wanted to see his name in print, coupled with an estimate of how much below normal is the value of the agricultural crop this year.

"If we escape a severe attack of hard times the credit will not belong to any of those agencies that usually claim credit for so much. The credit will belong to the country, which has the constitution of a horse, and the optimism of a thoroughbred colt which expects to win races but never dreams of being harnessed to heavy draught work. If our prospect can stand the needless knocks it has been getting this year, it can stand anything."

TO BOOST GLEICHEN DISTRICT

A despatch from Winnipeg of an interview with Sir Thomas Shaughnessy says: He denied that he knew anything about the projected line along the Thompson river northward of El-monton. The more pressing work was to develop work along existing lines of the Canadian Pacific. In this respect irrigation work along the line between Gleichen and Calgary had been very effective in attracting settlers and the country was rapidly becoming a land of small farms where gardening and extensive culture would be carried on.
Beets were already being shipped to the sugar factory in Raymond and the Canadian Pacific has received enquiries from several capitalists about buying land to promote beet culture in this strip of land with a view of building sugar factories. The work of irrigation is entirely satisfactory to the company and will be continued eastward as fast as circumstances will warrant. The C.
P. R. company, like other business institutions, is affected by the condition of the money market but it has no reason to be pessimistic. Its revenues are steadily increasing and its expenditures for the purpose of improving the service are keeping pace with the increasing revenue. Sir Thomas denied that there was any trouble in providing cars for the shipment of coal from the Rockies and their own mines were working full time at Anthracite. Altogether he considered the general situation most satisfactory and expressed his personal opinion that the money stringency could not be of long duration, as it was only a reflex of existing conditions in other countries.

The Gleichen Call

A CALL to the handless of the world settle on the unoccupied, fertile irrigated lands of "Sunny Alberta" surrounding Gleichen, the heart and centre of these lands.

A CALL to the professional man, the artisan and the laborer to make his home in that Gleichen, which is certain to be one of the most prosperous towns in "Sunny Alberta".

A CALL to the capitalist and the investor to invest in a town and district, which will without any doubt repay his investments a hundred fold in the future.

A CALL to those in search of health—the greatest of all earthly blessings —to come to a Province becoming famous as a Land of Sunshine, neither excessively hot nor frigidly cold—a happy climatic medium.

A CALL to those now here to work for the interests of that Gleichen, the they have made their home, to work for its present interests and its future welfare; to work unselfishly and unitedly for its advancement and prosperity. To work and never rest content till "Our Town" reaches a higher and a higher and a still higher position, till at last she takes her place as one of the foremost cities in fertile, mineral-endowed, healthy, beautiful, Sunny Alberta.

S. M. DICKINSON.

WOMAN

This is the eulogy given to woman by the Washington Star:

She works harder before breakfast than man works all day.

She has more humor in an off-hand word than man has in his funniest story.

She shows more pathos in her gentlest sigh than man has in his most lugubrious sailings.

She can economize more with twenty-five cents than a man with a dollar.

She can dress herself neatly and attractively for less than it costs a man for shoes and hats.

She has more patience in opening a drawer than a man has in laying the foundation of his fortune.

She displays more grace in falling out with a hammock than a man displays in his favorite slance.

She has more dignity in a nod of her head than a man has in a bow that embraces his entire anatomy.

She can show more justice in feeding chickens than a court of judges can show in a hundred volumes of printed decisions.

She shows more ingenuity in the things she does with the left over boiled potatoes than the greatest inventor who ever signed a patent specification.

No Further Explanation Needed

A Rochester clergyman was accustomed to use scientific terms which the people did not understand. A deputation waited on him with the request that in the future, whenever he used such terms, he would explain them.

On the following Sunday he used the term "hypocrite" and added: "As agreed on, I beg to explain the word. Were I to say that at this moment the women of my congregation are sound asleep it would be hypocrite, but if I say one-half are asleep, that is no hypocrite, but the truth."

The next day the deputaition again called to say that the minister need not explain technical terms. The people would learn their meaning from the dictionary—Rochester Herald.

THE ROUGH RIDER DIED

Pull the shutters open Harry. Let me feel the evening breeze
How it murmurs soft scent-laden thro' the flower clad forest trees.
See there where that sarsaparilla climbs that old dead gum tree trunk
And the sun throws fleeing shadows from it, right across my bunk.

Early in the day, old fellow, they were playing round my head.
When the shadows reach the shutter, then, boy, I'll be lying dead.
I was thinking all the morning, just before you chaps came in,
What those people mean who tell us each man must repent his sin.

I have done no sin I know of. What is sin? I drink and swear,
But I never wronged a woman, or to man was else than fair.

Yet the parson came this morning, knelt and prayed my soul to save
And when leaving, said forgiveness must be sought this side the grave.

Told me in a serious fashion what it did no good to know, How a woman ate an apple some few million years ago;

Since then, White and Black and Yellow, each and all are full of sin.
God he ain't that sort, for tell me— isn't that a bit too thin?

I can't manage this repenting. All I know I've got to die.
God will see me fair, old fellow. What's up Harry? Want to cry?

Don't be soft you gray old badger, you'll peg out some day I s'pose,
And we might meet one another in that other world; who knows?

Why will people tell a fellow that he's got to go to hell?

They don't know, they've never been there; no one yet came back to tell.
But, old mate, I'll soon be wiser, tho' a breaker wild and rough,
Than those people who are flinging with all sorts of hellish stuff.

Harry, I've just got to chance it, I can't pray; forgotten how;
I'm not frightened, only sorry that I've got to die just now.

I am young, just two and twenty, punch this chest, 'tis broad and sound, Yet by this time Friday, Harry, I'll be lying in the ground.

Oh, that ugly wall-eyed felly, ere she banged me on that gun.
I had very little notion she'd send me to kingdom come.

In my swag you'll find a letter my old mother wrote her Will;
When I'm buried write and tell her that I'm gone a kind o' ill.

Bide a while and write her full—she'll expect to hear it so—

That I've backed my last buck jumper, gone where all at length must go.
Tell her that I still remember what she used to tell me say

'Bout "Our Father," tho' I haven't—it will please her anyway.

Make a lot of little crosses underneath my name at last, Kisses for the poor old mother. Harry I am dying fast.

Pull the shutters wider open, let me see the flowers again;

Hear the curlews, how they're screaming, Harry, that's a sign of rain.
I don't feel a bit of sickness, I could kill a bullock now,

Or make things almighty lively in a fair four-cornered row;
But my back is broke, old fellow; some thing's wrong inside my head,

And the doctor said by sunset, I'd be numbered with the dead.

Harry, what's gone wrong, old fellow?

I keep slipping, slipping down.
Hold my hand, how dark it's getting, all the sunshine has a frown.

Harry, don't forget poor mother, write and tell her what I said—

Climbs the shadow o'er the shutters and the rider lies there dead.

AN APPEAL FOR THE FARM

(Governor Hughes of New York in Leslie's Weekly)

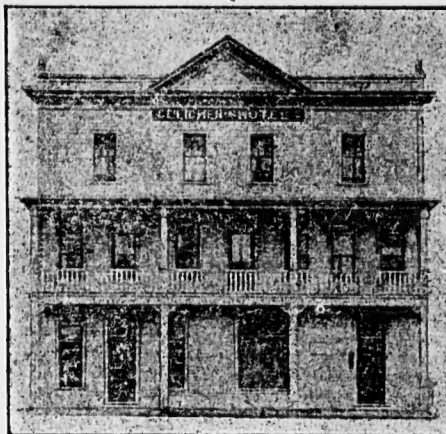

When you get out where a man has a little elbow room and a chance to develop, he has thought of his own. His thinking is not supplied to him every night and morning, and he is less of a machine, and more of a man, so I do not think that the farmer needs to be looked upon, or wants to be looked upon, as dependent on the state. Farmers do not come to the state government asking alms. They are self-reliant, they are intelligent. What we want in connection with agriculture is what we want in every other field of noble effort. We want training, we want intelligence, we want scientific method, we want the way shown, and then the man can walk in it. There is no reason why the same care and attention and skill and scientific consideration should not be shown to agriculture as to industry and the technical trades. The men who are running away from the farms too frequently make a mistake, and some day in New York—and the day is rapidly approaching—our young men in larger numbers will wake up to the fact that they have a pretty good chance on the farm, and that they may be to a greater degree independent and happy in life, if they stay where their happy lot were cast in connection with their father's farm, or another which they may be able to procure.

Unless the few men hereabouts who are making directly for a warmer climate, the trail to which is said to be paved with good intentions, stop in their mad career long enough to pay the printer, their names will appear in print in a way that may not be deemed flattering.

If you would help yourself, boost for Gleichen, and send The Call to your distant friends.

A. F. Houston was here from Montreal Monday.

J. W. Burt arrived Monday from St. Paul, Minn.

R. N. Sherman was down Monday from Calgary.

To-day is Thanksgiving Day and a public holiday.

D. P. McDaniel was here from Carstairs Saturday.

W. C. Covert arrived Sunday from Rosebud creek.

J. M. Christie was in Saturday from the Circle ranch.

J. J. Marshall went up to Calgary Tuesday on business.

Sam Hurnie and A. Laurie were down Sunday from Calgary.

Six weeks without a break of Sunny Alberta's famed weather.

D. Allen, manager of the Two Bar ranch, was in town Saturday.

Arrangements are being made for a grand ball in the near future. Who is doing it?

A. C. Johnson and F. Erickson arrived from Shenandoah, Iowa, to locate at Queenstown.

Wm. Broughton has commenced work on a new stable on his lots in the east end of the town.

A. R. Yates is selling the All Red envelope.

The Call asks for your job printing on the basis of the quality of work done, and fair prices.

Dr. Lafferty came down Monday from Calgary on official business connected with the Indian department.

This is the time of year the farmers can smile most—when they come to town with their wagons loaded with grain and prices are high.

The regular meeting of the Gleichen and District Board of Trade is held the second Tuesday in each month. The next will be on November 12th.

Geo. Gowan is in from the Red Deer river and thinks the man who composed it, but this is a Lonesome Town" could never have been in Gleichen.

There is nothing so disagreeable as to stand all the agonies of a dentist's chair only to find the work is poorly done. Dr. Lake at Calgary does away with the agonies and guarantees his work.

In England a new regulation provides that women school teachers are to be fined if they do not stay with their profession five years and men seven years before marrying. The penalty will probably be $100. There is no politician that dare suggest such a regulation for Alberta. The boys simply would not stand for it.

Married—At Calgary, on Wednesday, Oct. 23rd, 1907. Mrs. Madge McCluskey to Mr. Amhurst Hoyt. The contracting parties are well-known in Gleichen and their friends wish Mr. and Mrs. Hoyt a long and happy life. Mrs. Hoyt writes The Call that they will live in Strathmore for a few weeks, but will visit their Gleichen friends before leaving for England or California.

Why don't The Call take a side in politics? is a question quite frequently asked. Well the Call has troubles of its own for the present trying to find out just which side has the most rogues by reading party papers, and up-to-date the honors seem about evenly divided in this province. However, it is quite likely The Call will be taking a round out of each party before many moons.

This is real Plum Tree Belt weather.

The Call will have a good out of your business place or home made for you for $2.

FOR SALE—Pure Bred Black Langshank Cockerels at $1.00 each. Apply P. O. Courtney, Gleichen, Alta.

LOST—Bay Gelding, 3 years old next spring, branded inside of circle on left shoulder. $5 Reward for delivery in H. Scott's yard at Stobbsart.

Here is a big offer: The Winnipeg "Free Press and Prairie Farmer," the Montreal "Family Herald and Weekly Star" and The Gleichen Call for one year for $2.50. Those who are already paid subscribers to The Call may have the other two papers by sending us $1. Address The Gleichen Call.

An eastern editor has decided not to lie any more for his town. Here is his language: "It is full of newspaper men who kill themselves blowing for some little one horse town, and that too without support to fatten a grass-hopper. We've decided that it is a sin to lie, anyway, and in future we'll be found telling the truth." No doubt the townspeople company raised the bonus.

General Stoessel's Typewriter

Mr. George H. Richards, the special representative of the Remington Typewriter Company, who is now making an extended tour of the Far East, has made a most interesting discovery. He has found the identical Remington Typewriter which was used in the headquarters of General Stoessel during the siege of Port Arthur. This historic machine is now in the Museum of Trophies at Port Arthur, which was established by the Japanese after the fall of the fortress. This museum is filled with all kinds of relics of the great siege. Mr. Richards not only saw the machine, but was permitted, through the courtesy of General Saisho, the Japanese commandant, to take a number of photographs of it.

If this memorable machine could speak or even could produce all the writing which has been done on its cylinder, the world would know more of the true history of the siege of Port Arthur, the most awful in authentic history, than it has ever known or probably ever will.
